Real nice game GG 10/10. ATOMEGA is a light, polished game, with a defined, well-thought-out concept. The scale between evolution sizes works really well with overall gameplay philosophy, with small lifeforms scuttling through tiny cracks and pestering the building-size colossi trudging through the map.

It can be kind of hard to fill a match without a few friends to play with. At $3, though, you can afford to buy a few gift copies.. this game is bullcrap i can't even play i. it is a ripoff for every single person living in australia the optimisation is crap and unless it gets fixed DON'T BUY THIS PEICE OF CRAP. Needs to be much more complicated, right now, it's way too simple.. Solid, simple fun.

And it's cheap as hell, go for it.. First off there's no Uplay. Thank you lord.

Now, this is a great little gem. There's a really interesting multiplayer shooter here, with great graphics and sound and a nifty idea. If more people gave this game a fair shot so its playerbase could grow this one would be a real keeper.. Reasons to NOT like this game:

- It's very clean for most first-person-shooters. (Important for people who think: "Either it's bloody or it's bad.")
- VERY heavy synth music or no music at all. (If that applies)
- A simple science mistake: The end of reality wouldn't allow the scoreboard to exist, because (If you don't want to read it, you don't have to): The way information processing works requires for there to be particles to interact in a way that handles the processing, and the end of reality would destroy all particles in existence, so the "end of the world" you see would probably be the time-machine they use to pull everyone out of a crumbling universe and into a more stable one, yet one of the "good game" text pieces is: "Sweet Oblivion is upon us." either implying that reality did end or being sarcastic. This is only important to EXTREME science geeks, and the rest is successful suspension of disbelief, one of the rules of Science fiction. Speaking of which...
- It's Sci-fi. However, if you can't see a good game through it's sci-fi (or any genre) skin, then you need to see someone about that.
- Lack of players. This can be (but, as of this being written isn't being) fixed with advertizing. However, it's a very good reason for a game like this.

Notice how short that list is. Also, notice that I rebutted four out of five of them. Spread the word about this, and 10 dollars is WORTH this game (even though I got it for $5).. I bought this game just because I thought it would be a decent game and had some spare money, but oh my god...this game is great! I really hope more gets added to this title because of how big this could be. I want more maps, more upgrades, and maybe even more variation in transformations! This game is very limited right now, but it is still incredibly impressive with the little it has.

I definatley recommend this!

I liked this game alot would highly recommend! Here is a video of me playing! <https://youtu.be/snDdByKR8vg>. The game has fun playing mechanics, it's short, fast paced and sometimes intense.

Too bad I couldn't find any matches at the moment I was writing this review.. Great concept, however player community is pretty much dead from what I can tell. All I seem to find are low player count matches where there are frequent "team up" situations. I would say this game has been abandoned by the devs. They failed to add AI players and thus have allowed the game to die.. This game is pretty cool, the graphics are incredible when highest, and I love the playability. The only thing that bothers me is the price. Sure, 10 bucks for a game that has only 1 game mode and customization.

But I know it's not going to be too much trouble, because im sure the creators will be working on some amazing updates soon, but yeah, buy this game when it has some kind of offer, like at 50% or 25% off, you know. But over all, great game.. I have been looking at this game for a long time and never decided to get it thinking it would be the same as many of the .IO games, I was wrong. This game is the perfection of all those worked to death flash games. This a very fast, very fun game. I would recommend this game if you are looking for a cheap game to play with friends. The game ran VERY smootly and didn't give me any frame drops. I can't wait to play more of this and hopefully this review will get others of you to play it too!. Unique gameplay.....for just 10 dollars ? Plus they've released new maps ? Given how much DLC there is these days and the value that could be had for the game is fairly good. Sure its a 10 $ game with a multiplayer feature only, but at the very least you don't have to pay additional $$ to "unlock" the game's full potenital , nor do you have to grind out hours upon hours of gameplay to keep up with others that have thrown down $$ to " buy skills. "

If you want a departure from the current FPS's that are popular out there( Be it battlefield or COD ) , the game play IS different. At different evolution levels you'll play a much more different style then before . Don't expect to just respawn and then suddenly run and gun someone that's far more powerful then you are down asap . There are ways to take them down , however it requires knowing when to attack versus just straight up relying on brute force . ( Sure MOBAs have this) but with one catch as its explained in the store page.

There are drawbacks, however with this kind of game the maps will become the " balancing factor" as per say . For now they're still working on that aspect but the most recent 2 maps that were released have alleviated the issues that some might scream/shout about " balance." Since there's nothing like it that's attempted in any other game(s) before. There are different ways to play at each stage of the evolution . When your a cell, don't expect to take down a superior, your going to have to play differently, and vice versa but there's AWLAYS a way to catch up .

Sure it can snowball at times, but its doesn't snowball as hard as many (if not all)MOBA games. The powerups can use some tweaking, but for those who have played Quake or UT, those power ups are somewhat similar in a way.

If the devs are reading this, their map design's getting better, however it would be nice to have multiple spots where there is enough mass that can be gathered quickly.

Sure the mass fountains located in the middle of the map should have the most mass being generated per second, but the ones at the other parts of the map shouldn't be a great deal slower.... it'll give the sense that there won't be too much of a snowball going.

Or even better, design a few new gamemodes.....might require some tweaking(Primarily how the maps work )..... King of the hill .... CTF ? That would be interesting heh ... Ditto with TDM or such. But given the premise of the game. its one of its kind i haven't seen any other games that utilitze power with a large drawback in the way it does.. Nice to have and easy to play :). The only problem with this game is that there aren't that many players.

I dont give a s h i t if this review isn't useful in any way. I say its good enough to only complain about there being not so many players. SO BUY THIS F UCKING GAME!

Edit: I haven't played this game in a long while so I don't know what changes have been made to it. But on the most basic levels of how this game is played, you collect blocks around the map to become bigger and go through stages of size, at some point becoming big enough to stop and hurt nearby enemies. In all forms, your main method of attacking is shooting lasers, which with every bigger form becomes slower yet more powerful.

In the end you reach a large human-like form and turn gold, and you have a laser that shoots out forever as long as you are holding down the button. In this form, you also lose your mass of blocks and will soon die to restart everything again. Shooting your laser makes you lose mass faster, however shooting enemies makes you recover your mass faster than you lose it naturally. You aren't invincible though. If my memory serves correctly, your mass will gradually speed up its loss progress, and enemies can still attack you to lower it.

In the end, your goal is to get the highest score so you get the most experience points and level up to get new skins and colors.

People can be ♥♥♥♥♥♥♥♥s in this game and never give you a chance to become big, like destroying you before you get to even just the third stage.. i win one game as omega and i was 2nd
