Police are real corrupt, mafia type criminals. People are in law suits and going to jail for just about anything. They only care about themselves and when called to justice they run and hide. Fortunately the real Patriots are in the public eye, they are the heroes and fill the gap. Politicians and government in the USA are a whole different thing. If you tell them you want to do some good, most of them will get together and set you up with a camera and an "accident" which will leave you either brain dead or unable to do any good. Note: I am not saying this because of some real "corruption" in Brazil, but for the sake of the story. A more original angle might be corruption without the bad guys. So a policeman goes against the system, works too hard and gets passed over for promotion and is so annoyed he
